LUMINARIAN

CONCORDIA LUTHERAN HIGH SCHOOL

FORT WAYNE, INDIANA

HIGH SCHOOL

1068479

Concordia is a peculiar school. It is peculiar in the sense that it is supported and maintained by our Lutheran parents and friends. The builders of Concordia wanted their children and their children's children to be educated among and by people of their own faith. They went even further than that. They saw to it that while receiving a good education, their children's faith was nurtured and sustained. Yes, Concordia is peculiar because it is united in and by a common faith. Just how this unity thrived throughout the activities and experiences of Concordia students during the past year is shown in this, the '59 LUMINARIAN.

Together we worshipped in song and prayer

Geography plays an important part in the Religion course because it aids students in the greater understanding of the world of Bible times. S. Dent and W. Rump test their knowledge of the Biblical map under the guidance of Mr. R. Buls.

Pastor Oldsen offers a solution to a daily problem by quoting an appropriate Bible passage to C. Dettmer, and J. Saurer.

Concordia is a parochial school. To many this merely implies the fact that we have religion classes in addition to our regular curricular. Such is not the extent of Concordia's "religious content," however. We are subjected to a Christian atmosphere from opening devotions before our first class to friendly good-bys at the end of the school day. Religion and Concordia are inseparable. They supplement the importance and necessity of one another. They exist as a unit. Reverend Oldsen summed up the purpose of the Religion Department in these words. "It is intended to help students live contentedly and effectively no matter what life may bring."

Pastor Oldsen officiates at our Christmas Service.

And further explored the wonders of our God.

M. Schweitzer, an accomplished organist, plays Christmas carols for our Christmas service.

The story of the nativity was portrayed at the annual Christmas service by student council members.

Industrial arts, home economics, and business

Home economics courses prepare girls for things to come as a wife and mother. Instruction includes meal planning and preparing, sewing in all its various forms, personal hygiene, child care, and home furnishings. Actual activity is essential for learning home economics courses. Mrs. M. Schmidt, head of the Home Economics Department, feels that knowledge acquired in this field is invaluable for any girl. A style show climaxes the year of study.

In industrial arts an effort is made to acquaint students with the various functions of industry. Concordia's Industrial Arts department, headed by Mr. H. Panning, includes mechanical drawing and shop. The Industrial Arts Department is often called upon to aid the school by constructing equipment of one sort or another.

D. Colicho is pressing a seam on the garment she is making. Donna has learned that this seemingly insignificant task can make or break her final product.

P. Gibson and E. McFarland are preparing a metal surface for a new coat of paint in shop class.

Future secretaries, B. Keuneke, J. Schroeder, and K. Stein gain valuable experience manipulating a key-drive calculator; an adding, listing machine; and an automatic calculator, respectively.

training prepared us for things to come.

Business education prepares students to be professional craftsmen in the skills of typing, bookkeeping, and shorthand. Because these subjects are professional courses offered in high school, graduates will be able to take positions in the business offices of this community and nation without further education. Those graduates going on to college use the knowledge and skills for part-time work and class preparations. All Concordia students will be able to use these skills and information for the rest of their lives.

Yumm . . . . Looks like R. Schlegel will get a "A" on this production in home economics.

R. Wegman, K. Nord, and T. Bulmahn, supervise the working of the duplicating machine, while T. Hansen checks the results.

Science, math, and social studies courses

P. Kreibaum is working hard to complete a map of the United States for her geography assignment.

"In this department we teach the students those fields of research and study which are concerned with the determination of human conduct," said Mr. Walter Lobitz, head of the Social Studies Department. The knowledge gained through courses offered in this department helped us to conduct ourselves maturely in social life and laid the ground work for college or university training in the areas of economics, civics, geography, history, and sociology.

Economics shows students the importance of good economy in the business world; civics is a course in the organization of state and federal government; geography acquaints students with solutions to the problems effected by our natural environment; history courses treat of the successes and failures of people of the past, and sociology deals with the elemental forms of behavior.

Courses offered by the Science Department taught us many things about everyday life, of which we were completely unaware. Mr. J. Weinhold, head of the Science Department, added, "Because of the emphasis on science today, to have science as a credit is an asset to any person."

Mr. Reinking, geometry instructor, watches R. Knipstein and S. Greiner as they carefully construct geometrical figures on the board.

C. Shull and J. Kanning hope they have captured their "A" for biology.

challenged even the most ambitious among us.

Mr. A. Schwab summarized the purpose of the Mathematics Department in the following words: "I'm trying to cultivate not only an interest in and an awareness of mathematics, but to impress upon the students in the light of Christianity the importance of the mathematical concept in our space age."

If a person wishes to get a job immediately following graduation, he will find math aids him in the processes of logical reasoning required in everyday life. A good basic math course in high school makes for better individual work habits in college.

P. Walle and L. Stilwell carefully examine a mathematical figure.

F. Theye and D. Wyneken interview interview Representative E. Ross Adair before he speaks to the seniors.

S. Pfeifer appears virtually unimpressed as his chemistry experiment goes up in smoke.

Phys. ed. and intramural promoted good health.

The Concordia girls are trying to put something in orbit too!

Some of the activities which the physical education department carries out include basketball, soccer, tumbling, and gymnastics. Extra activities of the girls' section include golf, marching, and folk dancing. The boys' participate in football and track.

A welcome addition to the department this year was the trampoline. Mr. John Mader is the teacher of the boys' division and Mrs. Retrum teaches the girls'. She states that the purpose of this department is to develope the necessary skills in sports which will enable an individual to enjoy and use his leisure time profitable.

A. Zollinger holds his own in a close game of football.

L. Bender is trying to defeat the law of gravity.

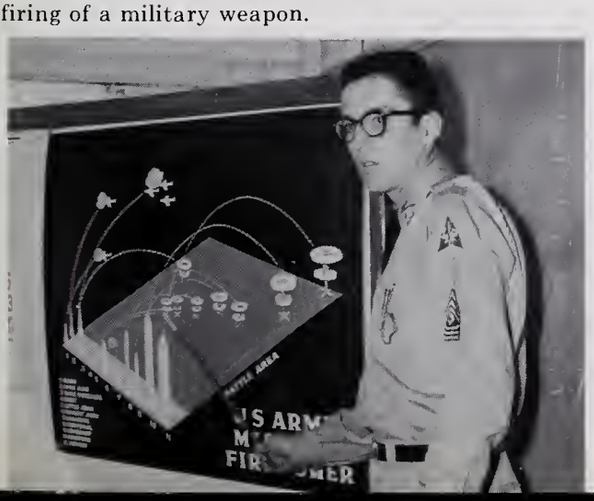
The Concordia Military Department again accomplished its task of building men. Through its many activities it endowed in its members a feeling of confidence and the ability to think and react quckly. The private learned to take orders while the officer learned to accept responsibility and exercise leadership. Through classroom instruction the cadets were provided with an insight of military affairs and were taught the basics of military training.

Batallion basketball and other athletic events of the department brightened the winter months. The Federal Inspection, Officers Banquet, and the Military Tournament brought to a close a highly successful year.



Sgt. Heine points out advances in modern warfare to his class members.

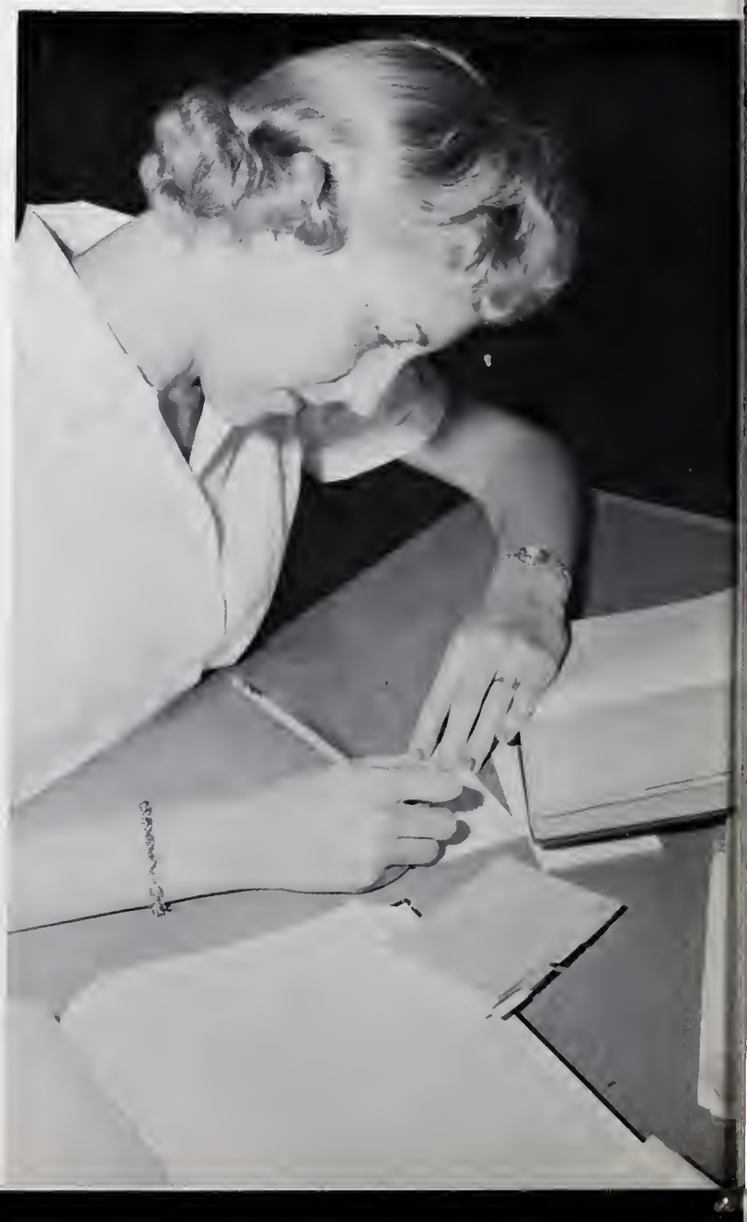
Language courses molded proficient speakers.

S. Erli and M. Merkle develope a given situation in drama class.

The Language Department at Concordia last year included English, German, and Latin courses. Grammar, literature, and composition were the three areas emphasizd in English, while vocabulary and the correct translation and understanding of context material were the areas receiving most emphasis in the foreign language courses. Equal amounts of training in drama and speech made up another phase of education offered by the Language Department. Mr. Jordan capably heads this department.

C. Hitzeman and C. Schroeder diagram sentences in English class.

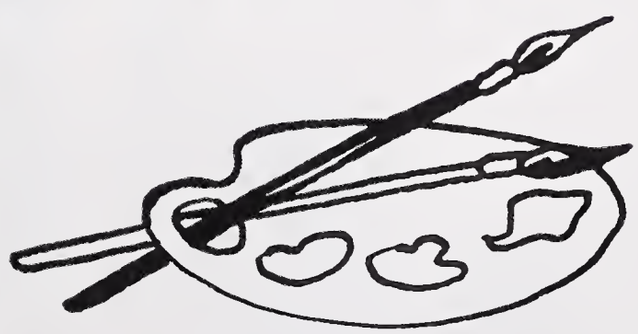
M. Schlund gathers information for her term paper in our school library.



Sketches became minor masterpieces in art class.

E. Endorf, K. Porter, and C. Stoltenberg receive instructions from J. Sturmfels, art instructor, for the pastel mural depicting scenes from the junior's literature book.

J. Taylor and R. Shull are engrossed in the production of their papier-mache giraffe.



The realms of a magical world were opened to us through the Art Department. Students found that they could express themselves effectively by painting, drawing, and sculpturing concrete, as well as abstract, objects and ideas.

Three-dimensional structures were fashioned out of papier-mache; jewelry and pottery were among their finer accomplishments; they served the school practically, as well as ornamentally, by making numerous posters and holiday decorations.

Unity was prominent even in the common,

L. Boseker, H. Moellering, D. Kruse, G. McClure, and H. Kreiselmeyer prepare to pay their tuition to Mrs. Holder on registration day.

Yes, unity was seen everywhere. We worshipped together, studied together, and played together. From the day we registered for the new school year until final exams were completed, we enjoyed the companionship of our fellow students, fellow Christians. Wasn't it wonderful that we all had the same basic principles and motives? We discovered that no one could live by himself successfully, but that all we did required the help of others and affected their lives as well as our own.

As we think back over the past year, whether we are seniors who graduate or underclassmen who will return again next year, those things that stand out most in our minds are the memories of experiences with our friends and companions, who entered the same portals and traveled the same paths of learning as did we.

assemblies, and other frequent social function

Oh! the thrill of those pep sessions--the band playing our school song, the cheerleaders directing, and our fellow students singing, "We're all for you."

After many of the games we got together for a party. We danced; we ate; and sometimes we listened to our Knights' of Swing. Private parties attracted many of us also. The girls went to their ever-popular slumber parties and accomplished some antics which wouldn't even be thought of by wide awake people.

The different classes had parties. The seniors had their much talked about come-as-you-are party; the juniors had their Christmas record hop, the sophomores, their St. Patricks Day party, and the freshman, their get-acquainted party.

We were nearly always busy, happy, and having fun.

J. Troxel must have gotten caught rather late in the evening for the senior come-as-you-are party.

We swung and glided through the evening of the "Fall Fantasy" party, which was one of the many after-game parties.

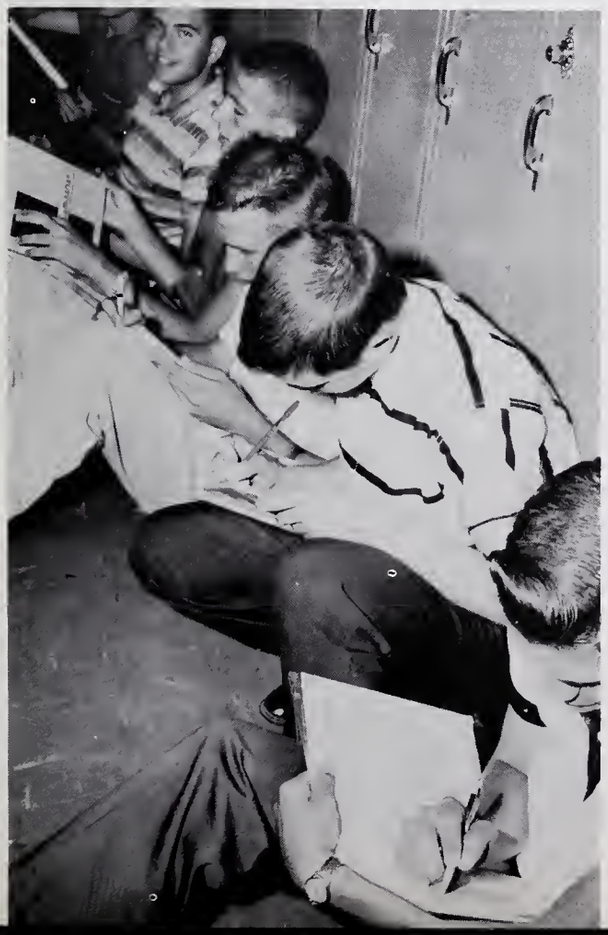
Special events were enthusiastically supported.

The spotlight dance of the queen and her court was an added attraction to our Fall Fantasy festival.

R. Doenges and R. Wiehe put the finishing touches on the junior Christmas display.

R. Gill, P. Gibson, S. Kruse, and D. Sebring bring in the year books prior to distribution.

And that was the end.. but not really.



As we look back on the past year, certain events stand out in our minds. We remember the Fall Fantasy Queen, her court, and the wonderful parade and party held afterwards. Christmas, 1958, is securely retained in memories of the semi-formal dance, the gaily decorated halls, and the closing Christmas service. We remember also the exciting sectional games and the fun their existence made possible. We laugh as we recall Sadie Hawkins Day and the "crazy-looking" girls. And of course, who could forget the spendor of the prom or the sleepy heads it produced the next day. Cap-and-gown day, Baccalaureate Sunday, and Graduation stand out particularly in the minds of the seniors. Receiving this year book and obtaining autographs in it also proved momentous events.

Proud C. Roemke and L. Tennison pin an even prouder E. Marhenke, signifying that she is now a member of the National Honor Society.

The word "congratulations" thrilled the hearts of many of our students this past year. Many and varied opportunities were offered the students of Concordia to gain recognition. For ability in portraying what they saw and felt, awards were given to art students. Awards were given for musical ability and showmanship to those who participated in the city and state contests. Letters were given to those boys who participated in sports and showed athleic ability. Awards were given to those freshmen who were persuasive salesmen. To those who maintained a high grade average and showed strong leadership and character traits, a membership in the National Honor Society was awarded.

These accomplishments indeed set a high standard for the ambitious and forward-looking student.

S. Meierding is wearing the tailored blazer which was again popular with the gals. The common colors were red, grey, and white, accented by a jeweled crest.

Willa Fuelling wants everyone to know what her name is, so she is wearing the jewelry "fad', her initial on a chain, which can be worn as a necklace or a belt.

The fringed chemise wesket and matching pleated skirt were new on the school scene this year. C. Koeneman is certainly doing justice to this version of the co-ordinates.

distinguish between '59 and all other years.

1959 was blessed with its due share of unusual and exciting fads in clothing, cars, hair-dos, jewelry, and what-have-you. Since these fads serve as not only accurate, but interesting reminders of that now past school year, they definately deserve a prominent place in the yearbook.

Perry Como sweaters, such as the ones worn here by D. Dreyer and R. Rohlfing, were all the rage among the well-dressed guys at Concordia last year.

B. Hunt begs (?) for a seat as D. Dreyer and R. Rohlfing comfortably stretch out their legs and in so doing show us the latest in shoe style for men.

R. Simon's horn-rimmed glasses strikingly set off her up-to-date "Italion" hair-do.

D. Ferber gives us a profile view, which tends to accent her fashionable, high-placed bun.

Because we are united in faith, our interests were naturally very similar. Together we joined clubs and organizations. False pretences were dropped, and intimate relationships grew as a result of mutual interests. Everything from electing a home room representative for membership on the Student Council to passing a rifle during a Snap Squad exhibition was done as a body.

United in faith,

we associate.

Student Council

National Honor Society-what a priviledge to belong. It is composed of juniors and seniors, screened and selected for membership on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and character. The seniors tag fellow seniors during the first semester and juniors during the second semester. A luncheon is held for the members during the first semester, and a banquet is given at the end of the year for all members. This chapter aims to stimulate scholarship, leadership, character, and to raise our high-school standards to a higher plane.

National Honor Society

The Student Council, the governing body of our school, is composed of officers elected by the student body, the four class presidents, and elected representatives from the various first hour classes. Its numerous responsibilities and projects include: raising money for foreign missions, sponsoring school functions--both social and objective, and trying, as much as is possible, to satisfy the wants and needs of the student body. The council members' jobs may be serious, but their meetings and undertakings are always perpetrated in good spirits and prove successful despite regular off-hand jokes.

Gamma Rho Delta

The purpose of this society is to further the study of the English language and to place more emphasis on reading, writing, and rhetoric. The meetings are held at the members' homes every three weeks, and talks are given by local celebrities such as Ron Ross of WPTA-TV. The society also attends the cultural plays given locally at the Civic Theater. Members of this exclusive society are chosen from the junior and senior classes on the basis of their English ability and past records.

Biology Club

The purpose of this club is to further explore the secrets of life as revealed in the study of biology. The various events of this club are usually determined by the members themselves, but participation in a field trip is mandatory. Individual projects consist of aquariums, terrariums, and microscopic investigation of specific types of plants and aniamls. The club is sponsored by Mr. Erie Meyer.

Library Club

The chief purpose of Library Club is to improve our own school library. Related purposes are to arouse further enthusiasm for books and to encourage interest in the library profession. Students learn how to repair books, how to order books, and how to catalog and process them.

Annually the H.S.L.A. (Hoosier School Librarians Association) has it's convention at a college. Last year the convention was held at Ball State.

Pins are awarded according to the amount of time contributed by individual members at the end of the year.

Science Club

The Science Club, directed by Mr. John Weinhold, allows students with a common interest in science to meet and discuss factions of their mutual interest. The members of this club tour industries such as Indiana and Michigan, International Harvester, and the newspaper plant. This past year they looked forward to participating in the Westinghouse Talent Search Contest.

The purpose of the Junior Red Cross is "to help others." Several of the services performed by this organization include: collecting for the poor at Thanksgiving and Christmas, giving an Easter party for the crippled children, and supporting various projects for the State School, the various hospitals, and the Lutheran Social Service.

The Junior Red Cross is associated with the other city organizations and works in accordance with them. The sponsor of this club is Mrs. Schmidt.

Future Ministers Club

A new club formed this year was the Future Ministers Club sponsored by Pastor Oldsen. The main purpose of this club is to give the members an opportunity to become acquaintd with the responsibilities, required schooling, areas of work, and particular qualifications of a minister.

The students in this club hear talks by various pastors, Concordia Senior College students, and chaplains. During the year they may visit a church to learn more about church functions and activities. The Future Ministers Club helps students to make a definite decision concerning whether or not the ministry is their calling.

Future Teachers Club

The Future Teachers of America is a club designed to give those students interested in teaching a chance to plan and discuss their futures with others interested in the same field. Different teachers give lectures to the members and the members visit several of the cities' Lutheran schools during the year. Mr. Buls is the sponsor of the club.

Luminarian

The LUMINARIAN staff is composed of several different groups working on the various phases of producing the yearbook. The editorial staff deals with the make-up and organizing of the yearbook; the literary staff writes the articles, captions, and headlines. The advertising staff recruits ads from the various city businesses, and in this way the yearbook is partially financed. The subscription staff members see to it that the students have opportunity to subscribe and pay for their yearbook.

The active LUMINARIAN staff is a hard-working body of Concordia students striving to produce a yearbook of which the student body and school can be justly proud.

Drama Club

The Drama Club is composed of students interested in acting and the various phases of producing a play. They work on improving their acting abilities and unveil the products of their work by helping to produce the fall play. Awards are given for outstanding work in the production and presentation of the play at the annual spring banquet. The sponsor of this club is Mr. Sturmfels.

"Lu Hi Voice" is the appropriate name of our school paper, which brings the school's news and views every three weeks to the student body as well as interested outsiders. The various staff editors are assisted by underclassmen who will assume the duties of same in coming years. Students who participate actively in this organization learn the fundamentals of journalism, and, perhaps even more important, learn to know the joy of holding a responsible position as assisting in the production of a fine paper. Latin Club

The Latin Club, which was organized last year, was composed of both first and second year Latin students who were interested in the customs and lives of those who first spoke the Latin language.

Participating members planned and attended a Roman banquet, dressing and eating as did the Romans of ancient times. Since all of the members were taking Latin courses, they were bound together by common interest and problems. The sponsor of the club was Mr. Potratz.

Snap Squad

The Snap Squad, this year, again represented Concordia with its creditable performances. The snappy precision drills were varied to make the exhibitions more enjoyable to the spectators. A change in uniform and enlargement of the squad also added to their appearance. The Snap Squad members quickly and correctly followed the commands of Capt. L. Stilwell, this year's commander. Yes, every eye was centered on Concordia's Snap Squad at every exhibition they presented; and Concordia is proud of them.

Mrs. Savage, played by D. Wyneken, admonishes her belligerent children, played by D. Ramm, J. Nagel, and W. Shrubsall.

The CURIOUS SAVAGE, Concordia's all-school play, was presented November 8, 9, and 10.

It was given in the round, the form of theater in which the players are surrounded by the audience. The play revolved around a wealthy woman, Mrs. Savage, who was sent to an insane asylum by her children, who were greedy for her money. The plot was developd through the personalties Mrs. Savage met at the home. How she outwitted her greedy children and in so doing taught them an important lesson of life, gave the story an interesting twist.

Mrs. Savage was played by Dorothy Wyneken. Other characters were played by Mary Knoblauch, Ruth Manske, Cindy Burhop, Clancy Roemke, and Tom Springer.

The senior class production, THE BOY FRIEND, was a full-fledged musical, with our Knights of Swing accompanying the songsters. The story revolved around Polly Brown, played by Pat Leitz, who was a poor little rich girl of the "roaring 20's." Her father was so worried that boys were interested only in her money, that he refused to allow her the priviledge of dating. With the help of her fellow students and teacher at the girls' finishing school she was attending, Polly's father, played by Dave Ramm, was convinced of the fact that a "boy friend" is a "boy friend" and not a money-hunter.

The BOY FRIEND closed its successful production with an "all characters on-stage." The main characters, seated in the front row, were D. Ramm, C. Shroeder, C. Moellering, S. Erli, C. Roemke, P. Leitz, P. Heine, R. Stauffer, L. Stilwell, and M. Tessman.

Choir

Robed in the school's colors, our choir, directed by Mr. R. Werling, went to the various Lutheran churches in Fort Wayne and sang at their Sunday Services. In the spring they also sang at Clear Lake Chapel. The choir is composed of students from each of the four classes. The members rehearse every day during the fourth hour. The choir often sang at school services held at Concordia Church throughout the year. Choir is considered a solid subject, and consequently, participants receive creditable grades. The Music Contest and the Spring Concert are two major activities in which members of this organization participate.

Orchestra

The Concordia High School orchestra completed another successful year due mainly to enthusiastically supported rehearsals three times a week. The 24 musicians played at various church banquets and civic functions. The brilliant Spring Concert high-lighted the members activities. Mr. R. Werling directs Concordia's orchestra.

Sharps and Flats Club

The Sharps and Flats club is part of the Junior Morning Musical organization. It is composed of musically minded students from the different high schools of Fort Wayne, who come together once a month to discuss plans for the Fine Arts Festival, recitals, and their spring banquet. Our portion of the club is sponsored by Mr. Werling, our choir and orchestra director.

The Twirlers salute Concordia during a half-time exhibition.

Cadet Twirlers

As half-time drew near, the twirlers lined up for their exhibition. The final buzzer sounded and in they marched. The Concordia twirlers have gained a fine reputation and were an enjoyable part of our basketball and football games. This past year they were usually attired in maroon and white plaid kilts. They were led by Sue Erli with Judy Hein assisting. The twirler's exhibitions were clever and they usually coincided with events or holidays. The half-times are over for another year but the cheers of the crowd remain in our minds. Let's give our twirlers a great big hand and say, "Well Done."

Concor

One of the most important aspects of Concordia student life is school spirit, generated by the athletic program here at Concordia. The teamwork that was evident during the past year resulted in strong fighting units and successful seasons. In turn the student body joined together in support of their teams and cheered them on through victory and defeat.

The students again displayed the results of their Christian training in both good sportsmanship and school spirit. Consequently, Concordia's good name was upheld as it has been in previous years.

Under the able coaching of Wm. Koch, the football team at Concordia again completed a successful year with a record of five wins, three losses, and two ties. The team, backed by the fan's enthusiasm, showed spirit and drive throughout the entire year during both victory and defeat.

The Cadet lettermen making the NEIC all-conference team were; first team-Ralph Grant, second team-Steve Narhwald and Paul Heine. Honorable mention was received by Fred Theye. Although fifteen seniors will be leaving the team this year, many sophomores and juniors received valuable experience this year which will help them carry on Concordia's good name in the future.

Varsity Cadets

The Varsity Basketball Team gave many thrilling performances to the fans this year, although they ended the season with a 5-17 record. The team, composed mostly of underclassmen, was going through a rebuilding year under their new coach, John Mader. The team improved steadily through the year, showing much teamwork, spirit, and Christian sportsmanship. The fans stood behind the boys, and they fought their hardest even when things were not going in their favor. Their great improvement was shown in the Sectionals when they defeated Harlen, which had a 14-6 record. Concordia fan can look forward to a winning season next year with most of the varsity team returning.

Our varsity cheerleaders, J. Troxel, M. Walde, J. Brandt, and S. Kassing, say, "We'll roll on to victory."

Our "B" team cheerleaders, J. Ramming, C. Lehman, A. Franz, and C. Heine, led the cheering section at our reserve games.

Cheerleaders

Our cheerleaders, elected by the student body on the basis of pep, vim, and cheering ability, represent our school. Regardless of the outlook or outcome, our cheerleaders are always at the games promoting the school spirit and urging our boys on.

S. Kassing, J. Troxel, J. Brandt, and M. Walde, led the school in cheers at the pre-game pep sessions.

S. Voelker and C. Kiser give their all at the cheerleading tryouts.

SECOND ROW: M. Abbot, B. Dehnert, E. McFarland, K. Nord, R. Brown, R. McGregor, L. Clark.

Rifle Team

The rifle team, a victorious group of sharpshooters, is composed of fourteen boys who represent our school in rifle matches. Their opponents are members of teams from the various schools in Indiana. The members fire from prone, kneeling, sitting, and off-hand positions. The sum of the individual scores of five of the members determines the team's score. Our rifle team had a successful season. It is under the supervision of Captain Venderly.

Lettermans Club

The Lettermans club is a group of boys who have participated in one of the major or minor sports such as football, basketball, track, baseball, or cross country and have earned a letter in one of them. Support of projects such as car washes and selling refreshments at home games helped to defray costs on letter jackets. At the end of the year a party was given for all members. This club is sponsored by Coach Koch.

R. Moellering, G. Forest, and S. Hibler are among those off to a good start at one of the many track meets.

R. Wiegman backs up S. Benz in preparation for a baton relay.

Thanks to D. Hille Concordia has scored another point.

R. Grant crosses the bar in an attempt to set a new pole vaulting record.

Our cross country team--FRONT ROW: R. Moellering, L. Kempf, J. Olson, C. Keller.
SECOND ROW: Coach A. Schwab, S. Hibler, J. Widenhofer, G. Forrest.

Track

Our track team, which is coached by Mr. Koch, was unusally active this past season; thus the team managed to put more emphasis on the great variety of sporting events included under the term "track." The increased amount of emphasis happily resulted in good timings, high jumps, and long throws.

Cross-country

Our Cross-country team, under the direction of Coach Schwab, concluded the season this past year with several exceptionally creditable runs. The thinleys practiced hard and long in order to successfully compete against equally determined foes. The sectional meet was again held at Franke Park; the Concordia Cross-country Team made it usual good showing.

Coach Schwab times G. Forrest and S. Hibler as they cross the finish line at one of the numerous cross country races.

S. Hibler sets a quick pace for the rest of the cross country team.

G.A.A.

The Girls' Athletic Association is designed to keep an interest in competitive sports alive among girls of Concordia. There are four groups, each meeting once a month. They play dodgeball, basketball, or any type of sport appropriate to the time and season. Through the accumulation of points the girls become eligible for awards. These points are secured by attending the meetings and by individual sport activities. 150 points make them eligible for numerals; 250 points are necessary to secure a letter, and 350 points qualify them for a gold placque. A banquet is held every spring at which the girls who have earned them receive their due rewards. This organization is open to all girl students and was widely participated in this year.

When in the course of human events. . .

Ugh!

I've heard of seniors cleaning out their lockers, but this is ridiculous.

It was one of those days.

Sorry, Mr. Jordan, but you didn't need the rest of you to eat that pretsel anyhow.

You certainly can't say she isn't TRYING.

Talk about chemical reactions!

God created each of us, giving each individual a different face, mind, and personality. No one can look into the heart of his classmate, teacher, or pal and know what the other person feels. The only means of expression we have is our voice and ourselves.

The following pages will, in future years as well as now, remind you of each persons' personality and character. As you look at the picture of each one, your memory will recall vivid pictures of each person as you knew him. These people, classmates of yours, are the citizens of tomorrow's world and eternity. Remember them well.

Concordia,

united in faith

CLASS OFFICERS: C. Roemke, S. Bender, C. Koenaman, D. Ramm.

Graduation is close at hand. Our senior year, as well as the three preceding it, is gone, never to be seen again. Never, that is, except in memory. What are our feelings now that the end is so close at hand? Joy is one prominent feeling experienced at this time. Such is as it should be; we have worked hard and resultingly deserve a feeling of accomplishment and success. However, sorrow counter-balances this feeling of joy. Working and playing together as we have over the past four years has been enjoyable and rewarding. The success of our fund-raising campaigns, our class parties and senior trip, our senior production of the musical, THE BOY FRIEND, etc. make it hard for us to say, "Good-bye, Concordia." The friends we have made among our class-mates, school-mates and teachers can not be put aside without any further thought; they are part of us. Our education and spiritual training are the greatest gifts we carry with us as we leave. We pray that what we gave of ourselves during the past four years may in part compensate for all that we take with us at this time.

R. Stauffer, M. Tessman, J. Troxel, L. Tennison, C. Koenaman, P. Leitz, A. Krudop, C. Dammeier, and M. Schlund serve as an interesting cross-section of seniors dressed as they were found when invited to the senior "Come-as-you-are Party."

Juniors

"Look Mrs. Schmidt!" echo a group of juniors, "Aren't our new class rings beautiful?"

At the beginning of last year we suddenly became upper-classmen. Class rings and myriads of responsibilities added significance to this newly acquired position. The seniors suddenly didn't look quite so distant or mysterious, and we realized with a start that in a year we would be seniors ourselves. Our junior year was one of hilarity and seriousness. we enjoyed the priviledge of being able to drive but were brought to a temporary stand-still when told, "Now is the time to choose your goal." We have chosen our ultimate goal with Christ and are planning to see our fellow classmates again next year as seniors here at Concordia, where we are united in faith.

FRESHMAN

The first day of school: what a conglomerate assortment we were. We came from different parts of the city and different schools with different backgrounds and interests. We had one thing in common, our religion.

This past year was full of fun, and we have had so much to be thankful for, especially the priviledge of representing Concordia as part of the student body. We will never forget our freshman year.

Concordia Friends and Aids

Mrs. Keller and Mrs. Holder perform two of their numerous tasks as the school's secretaries.

You guessed it. He's the same Mr. George that sold us our class rings and our yearbook contract. No telling in what connection we'll meet him next.

Mr. Arnold Bienz, the evening custodian, replaces the desks after sweeping the floor.

Mr. Stein, the day-time custodian, wonders where it all comes from.

Teacher—what does the word mean? To the world it means one who instructs; but to us, the individual students, it means those who strive to impart some of their vast knowledge and understanding to us for our benefit and future use. To some the word may bring to mind a person who has helped guide our life in the way which is right, or one who has helped us overcome one of life's many obstacles. Whatever the memories of our teachers may be, their patience and instruction will serve us for the rest of our lives.
